Version 5.0 | Effective Monday, January 4, 2027 | Owner: Finance

1. What you can claim

You can claim reasonable costs you pay for yourself while doing your job, if they follow this policy. Submit claims in the expenses app within 30 days of the cost. Claims are paid with your next paycheck after approval.

2. Approval

Your line manager approves your claims. Claims over US$500 also need approval from Finance.

3. Receipts

Attach a photo of the receipt for every cost of US$25 or more. Without a receipt, a claim may be refused.

4. Taxis and rideshares

You can claim a taxi or rideshare between the office and a client site, and from a client site to the office.

Late finishes. If a work event ends after 9:00 p.m., you can claim a taxi or rideshare home, up to US$60 one way. Work events include client meetings, client dinners, team events approved by your line manager, and working late to meet an agreed deadline. Attach the receipt and the name of the event.

5. Client entertainment

- Client meals and events need approval from your line manager before they happen.
- The limit is US$90 per person, including drinks, tax, and tips.
- List the names and companies of everyone who attended in your claim.
- Alcohol is allowed at approved client meals, in moderation.

6. Using your own car

Claim business mileage at US$0.58 per mile. Don't claim your normal commute between home and the office.

7. Home office equipment

Hybrid staff can claim up to US$250 once every three years toward a desk or a chair for working from home, with a receipt.

8. What you can't claim

- Traffic and parking fines.
- Your normal commute to and from the office.
- Personal entertainment, such as movies in a hotel.
- Gifts to clients over US$50 without Finance approval.
